

JURIS

The fall of communism has re-opened Eastern Europe and things that once had a common history are now growing back together again. This is particularly true in Burgenland along the border to Hungary where relationships with our neighbours to the east are deepening.

Family Stiegelmar purchased a mountain vineyard on Lake Balaton in 1995. The wine growing area Badacsony consists of a range of small, extinct volcanoes stretching along the west side of the lake. The soil composition is very interesting with basalt rock interspersed with Pannonian clay.

The JURIS VILLA Winery produces fruity, mineraly white wine from Pinot gris grapes sourced from south-facing slopes of the largest volcano, Badacsony. A second wine from a historic variety is the Syrah with the first vintage 2007.

The Cistercian monks brought Pinot Gris to this region 1000 years ago. The variety is known by the synonym Szürkebarat, which means "gray monk", and has become a classic grape of the region

Wine:	Syrah – JURIS Villa
winegrowing area:	Hungary - Badacsony
Vintage:	2013
Enologist:	Georg Stiegelmar
grape variety:	Syrah
colour:	red
Tasting notes:	dark ruby garnet, thick spicy nose, light smoky aromas in the palate with spicy reminiscences to blackberry and forest fruits, long finish
Food pairing:	Mushroom courts, bovine animal roasted, cheese, game
serve at °C:	15
Analysis:	Alcohol in %: 13,0 Residual sugar g/l: 1,0 Acidity in g/l: 4,5
open before drinking:	1 hour
storage potential:	5-10 years
vinification description:	Wine from small white wine area in Balaton lake, grown on basalt, volcanic rocks. The vineyard was planted in 2005 and the first harvest was in 2007.
bottle size:	0,75 l
Awards:	